

COPSOQ as political action

Hernán Camilo Pulido Martínez, Ph. D.

Luz Mery Carvajal Marín Ms. Sc.

Jairo Ernesto Luna García, Ph.D.

Bogotá, Colombia

OBJECTIVE

- To explore the political potential of psychology and psycho-social studies when the social context where they are conducted is taken into account.

Contents

- Group members
- Conceptual tools
- Our encounter COPSQQ
- Working conditions Health sector
- Two episodes in the journey of the COPSQQ
- Conclusion

Group composition

- National, Pilot, Autonomous, Xavier Universities
- City Health Office
- Activists
- Doctoral and master students

Conceptual tools

- Social studies of Science
- Critical psychology
- History of psychology

Our encounter with COPSQQ

- Casual
- A unique case
- Psycho-social different from organizational psychology
- Political issues involved

Working conditions

- 37.300 workers
- 17% hired (direct contract)
- 42% short contracts
- 32% free-lance
- 9% temporary workers

Episodes

- Couching instead of COPSQQ
- The appropriation of science

- Thank you